Drumheller guards working scared

Union boss said he sees the same fear among guards at minimum-security prisons across Canada

DARREN KRAUSE
@METRONEWS.CA

Prison guards in Drumheller are on edge, with some fearing for their lives, in the aftermath of one of their own being assaulted Tuesday.

Information provided to Metro through a confidential source at the Drumheller Institution, claims a string of recent incidents have some of the guards worrying about their safety and questioning whether significant changes need to be made to ensure protection of staff.

Earlier this week, a female guard was allegedly assaulted, choked with a seatbelt and tied up and left on the side of a highway near Drumheller at the hands of a convicted murderer claiming he was sick while on an escorted leave of absence.

While an internal investigation is ongoing, the source indicated an ongoing two-fold concern at the prison: single, unarmed escorts for minimum-security prisoners, and minimum-security prisoners who have been "cascaded" down from medium security, where the inmates' security rating evaluation can be different.

Kevin Grabowsky, Prairies boss for the Union of Canadian Correctional Officers of Canada (UCCO), said this peril experienced by the guard Tuesday is a danger of the job, but said the issue could be solved with two officer escorts and tightening up of the security evaluations.

"We're happy the service is going to be doing some reviews of inmates placed in minimum securities. We welcome that," he said.

Dawn Bancroft, of the Drumheller Institution, confirmed they are reviewing procedures in light of the recent incident, but said the escort followed all national guidelines.

"When we send ETAs (escorted temporary absences) out from here, they are sent out under the direction of the policy ... and the policies are generated nationally," said Bancroft.

Still, the source indicated "the greatest fear is losing one of those closest to me and being powerless to stop it," while acknowledging the inherent dangers of the job.

Grabowsky admitted a certain amount of fear "keeps you on your toes," but said a fear for one's life isn't reasonable.

Police are continuing their investigation into Tuesday's incident.

Institution morale

- Frustration. UCCO boss Kevin Grabowsky describes officers' morale at Drumheller Institution as discouraged, strained, upset and frustrated.
- Held hostage. In March, William Bicknell allegedly fled from a Drumheller Institution escorted leave and held an elderly woman hostage near Sexsmith, Alta.

Crime reporting goes digital

- New computer available for use by the public slated to begin service early next month
- Future partnerships could see the terminals in shopping malls and grocery stores

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Calgary police are tapping into digital convenience in a bid to boost crime reporting.

A computer will be set up at the District 6 office early next month that is open for public use to report crimes like vandalism, theft under $5,000 and lost items.

This will mark the first step in an initiative that could someday see terminals solely intended for crime reporting available in popular public spaces likes malls and grocery stores, said acting Staff-Sgt. Asif Rashid.

"We are trying to make this as conducive and easy as possible for people to report crime," he said. "For those (who) are not fortunate enough to have computers at home, we can certainly look at partnering with others to offer them another avenue."

Under-reporting of crime was a key concern in the Calgary Police Commission's annual public survey released earlier this month.

It found that only 58 per cent of respondents reported a crime committed against them — down from 74 per cent a year ago.

"We want to hear from the public," said commission chair Mike Shaikh. "We want them to report any crime, it doesn't matter how petty it is. That's why we are trying to make it easier for people."

Rashid will be evaluating feedback and usage rates for the first public computer in the months ahead and then explore possible expansion of the program to other district offices.

A cost for the initiative is still being determined.

Easy as 1, 2, 3

- Staff-Sgt. Asif Rashid said citizens with basic knowledge of computers should be able to file an online report to police within 5-10 minutes.
- Calgarians cannot use online crime reporting for more serious offences, such as break-and-enters and assaults.

THIEF SHOOTING

Farmer appeals shooting sentence

A central Alberta farmer convicted of shooting a man trying to steal his all-terrain vehicle is appealing his sentence.

Brian Knight, who is 41, is supposed to serve 90 days in jail for criminal negligence causing bodily harm.

Knight, who is married with children, is to serve the time on weekends at the Red Deer Remand Centre.

He hit Harold Groening with several pellets of light birdshot in March 2009.

Groening was fleeing Knight's property near Tees.

Knight's bid to appeal is to be heard in Calgary on Nov. 3.

Government set for brief sitting

The off-again, on-again fall sitting of the Alberta legislature is still on — but as soon as it's on, it will be off.

Premier Alison Redford, in a news release Thursday, announced that the fall sitting of the legislature will resume as per the schedule on Monday to discuss the global economy.

But on Tuesday, she said, they will take a month-long break and resume on Nov. 21.

"We've got a lot of new ministers. They've got a lot of great ideas and we want to take the time that's necessary to reflect on them and make sure those ideas are reflected in the agenda," said Kim Misik, spokesman for the premier.

26
The number of days between provincial legislative sessions.

Wildrose party Leader Danielle Smith said it's cruelly ironic that the premier will brief the legislature Monday on a looming economic meltdown, then announce the next day they need more time because they're not ready to deal with it.

Library feud brewing at University of Calgary

JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

▶ Sartaj Hundal, left, and Nikolay Todorov stand in front of the MacKimmie Library — the majority of which is now off limits to students.

- Officials unveiled new facility
- Students lament a space crunch

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

University of Calgary officials unveiled their new, state-of-the-art library Thursday, but it seems hundreds — if not thousands — of students aren't ready to close the book on its predecessor.

The $205-million Taylor Family Digital Library boasts technology that will aid students in virtually every field, said university President Elizabeth Cannon.

"(It) has instantly become the most treasured building on our campus," she said.

But students like Sartaj Hundal and Nikolay Todorov beg to differ. They note that the original MacKimmie Library, which has twice as many floors and a great deal more study space, is closed to students.

"It's nice for research and everything . . . but it's ridiculous when me and a friend have to walk around for an hour just to find a place to sit down and have a chat," said Hundal, a third-year biology student.

The pair created a Facebook group this week titled "Open MacKimmie Library at UCalgary" to draw people for an upcoming rally Nov. 10. More than 1,000 had pledged to attend as of Thursday afternoon.

Hundal said some faculties have established their own Wi-Fi connections in other areas of the university because they can't find a place to work at the library.

Options are being explored to re-purpose and renovate MacKimmie Library, according to documents on the university website.

Contribution

- Longtime university supporters Don and Ruth Taylor dedicated $25 million toward the new campus library in 2006. All three levels of government also contributed funds.
- The facility contains more than 200 computer workstations as well as 600,000 books and journals.

Union addresses concerns

University of Calgary Students' Union President Dylan Jones said he has fielded numerous inquiries from students about limited study space offered by the new library and has begun working on solutions with university officials.

"Within less than a week, they were able to open up 225 study spaces . . . we are in a transition here," he said.

REHAB CENTRE

Ladies' night at the Drop-In

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

It was all about relaxation and fun as the Calgary Drop-In and Rehab Centre held its first annual Women's Pamper Night Thursday evening.

Gift bags were handed out and hairdressers, stylists and makeup artists were in attendance. So were staff from community organizations like Bow Valley College and Calgary Self Help.

"I think it's great to involve members of the community, helping other people in the community," said Kelli Taylor, the event chairwoman.

Taylor, a medical student working at the student-run clinic at the Drop-In, said the goal was to provide some relief from the stresses of life.

"The clinic that we work at addresses some of the medical needs of people but we think that there's a broader definition of health," said Taylor.

The services that were provided to the women were based on feedback from the female clients at the Drop-In.

Taylor said the event was open to other women in the community experiencing homelessness and not just clients at the Drop-In.

The goal was to have 75 women attend the event with hopes of expanding the program next year.

CALGARY: NOT JUST OIL, GAS AND COWBOYS

IN DEFENCE OF

MIKE MORRISON
METRO CALGARY

I, like thousands of Calgarians, am not from here.

But after eating my fair share of Crave cupcakes over the years, I happily now call myself a Calgarian. Which, admittedly, hasn't always been the case.

Happily living in the city has come with a price, however; including countless speeding tickets and an endless stream of resentment from many of my friends and family in my home province of New Brunswick, where, for years, they've been suffering somewhat from a brain drain of people who left the province after being educated to seek jobs elsewhere. (I'd earned a degree in Spanish, so they were probably happy to see me go.)

Since moving six years ago, I try to make it home to Fredericton two or three times a year. I inevitably spend most of my time between lobster dinners defending my decision to live out West. How could I live somewhere so expensive? What else is there besides oil and gas? How gross is Cowboys? (the bar, not the profession).

This past week, I decided to head home and surprise my granny and mother for their respective birthdays. One night I went out with my old friends and, as always, I was prepared to defend my choice to live in Calgary.

But, this time around, our conversation was distinctly different. I don't know if it's our changing political landscape or exploding arts scene, but for first time in years people in New Brunswick seemed to be excited about the place I now call home.

If Calgary and Fredericton were my divorced parents, this would have been the first time I saw the two of them happily co-existing. It was a great feeling.

As I flew back into Calgary, I was left thinking about all the great things that Fredericton has to offer, too — maybe even some things that our city could learn from.

Fredericton's city hall has just seamlessly added bike lanes throughout almost the entire city with nary a huff from pedestrians, motorists or cyclists. We can't even do that to one street in Calgary without forming a committee to talk about it.

"If Calgary and Fredericton were my divorced parents, this would have been the first time I saw the two of them happily co-existing."

They've also committed themselves to building reasonably priced houses and apartments in and around the city's core. Imagine — centrally located housing, not just condominiums, that everyone can afford? It doesn't seem like such a bad idea.

If anything, now that the people of a province that Calgarians hardly know anything about know how fantastic our city has become, maybe we can all stop referring to them as fishermen?

Gadhafi's death elicits 'tears of celebration'

Members of the Libyan community in Calgary held several anti-Gadhafi rallies this year A celebration was planned in Calgary for Friday in front of city hall

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

Calgarian Hatem Shebani was bracing for the worst when he woke up Thursday morning to find several missed calls from his family back in Libya.

"It never occurred to me that I'd be getting some of the best news of my life," said Shebani, who checked his voicemail and learned Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi had been killed during a NATO airstrike.

Shebani said most of his family lives in Tripoli and many of them have been directly involved in the conflict, including his brother-in-law who was meant to go to Gadhafi's hometown Friday.

Yousif El Gumati has led several rallies in Calgary and said he too was shocked to hear the news Thursday morning when he received a call from a friend in Libya. "It's real now. Gadhafi's dictator regime is over," he said.

Even after living in Canada for three decades, Hesham Zegali said he remembers living under Gadhafi's regime when he was in Libya. "No one has done to their own people what Gadhafi has done," he said. "It's a relief of pain that we had for so many years."

When asked his hopes for the future of Libya, Zegali began crying. "It was tears of celebration and joy. It's finally over."

It all began ...

- Libyans began rebelling against their leader in February.
- His government was eventually driven out of power.
- Moammar Gadhafi was killed in his birthplace of Sirte.
- Gadhafi had ruled Libya for 42 years.

Deadly disease threatens dogs

After 10 puppies had to be euthanized, the Calgary Humane Society is urging pet owners to ensure their dogs are properly vaccinated.

In the past two weeks, the society has seen an increase in the number of animals testing positive for Canine Parvo — a deadly puppy disease.

Tammy Mazubert, department head of animal health at the society, said there could be a number of reasons for the spike in cases.

7 Within seven to 10 days of contracting the virus, dogs will show symptoms such as vomiting and diarrhea.

"We think that's due to the number of litters that are actually born in the spring and in the fall, so there's a lot more unvaccinated animals in the community," she said.

Karen MacNeil said she's relieved her four-month-old silver lab Crosby finished his third round of vaccinations last weekend.

She said she had dogs for 15 years before and didn't realize the full importance of vaccination.

"It's shocking, after being pet owners for so long and not knowing that they are supposed to have the third set of shots before they're going into dog parks and more public places," she said.

Humane Society spokesperson Christy Thompson said the disease is very expensive to treat and often doesn't work for puppies.

"I think that people just need to understand that vaccinating puppies is essential."

ANTI-SMOKING

Province gets kudos for no tobacco investments

Alberta is being lauded by anti-smoking and social-investment groups for being the first province to dump its investments in the tobacco industry.

The Alberta Investment Management Corp. has sold $17.5 million in directly managed stock held by public-sector pension funds and the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund.

Leo de Bever, CEO of the Crown corporation, says the province is making the move as it prepares to file a lawsuit against big tobacco to recover health-care costs for smoking-related illnesses.

Holding such shares while fighting the case would look bad, he says.

"This was across the spectrum and it is because the government is suing the tobacco companies over health care," de Bever says. "We could be seen as directly holding tobacco stocks."

Groups such as the Social Investment Organization and Physicians for a Smoke-Free Canada say Alberta's move to divest itself of the tobacco shares is a first for a Canadian government.

Cynthia Callard, executive director of Physicians for a Smoke-Free Canada, says most provinces have tobacco-industry investments, but only a few release detailed information about them.

New science centre too pricey: Parent

Telus World of Science opens Oct. 29 Former annual family pass swapped for build-your-own-package system

Price comparison

Here's how the prices of science centres stack up across other provinces:

- Edmonton's Telus World of Science. Family membership for two adults and up to four children is $134.95.
- Vancouver's Telus World of Science. Family membership for two adults and up to four children is $83.50.
- The Saskatchewan Science Centre in Regina. Family membership for two adults and up to four children for $74.50.

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

With two young "science-crazy" sons, Calgary mom Risa Kawchuk said she was looking forward to the new Telus World of Science, until she checked the prices.

Kawchuk said at the old centre, she purchased an annual family pass, which she and her husband, along with her sons Daegan, 9, and Gareth, 6, used frequently.

"I went to the new science centre website and I was just shocked by how expensive it was," she said.

Instead of a family pass, the centre has moved towards a system that allows families to build their own packages. "This flexible pricing structure allows you to build your own membership for your individual family unit," said Telus World of Science spokesperson Rida Rehmani.

The former annual family pass for two adults and two children under 12 cost about $160, while the cost for the same-size family at the new centre ranges from $204 to $320, depending on which package is purchased.

"When we were pricing this out, it was completely based on other Calgary attractions and it's a completely fair system," said Rehmani, adding parking is $5 at the new facility compared to $18 at the old location.

Kawchuk said they would visit the new facility before deciding whether they'd like to purchase an annual pass. "I just think it's become out of the reach for many, many families in this city."

KATIE TURNER/METRO

▶ Calgary mom Risa Kawchuk said while her two sons Gareth, 6, right, and Daegan, 9, love the science centre, they may not visit as frequently due to the cost of membership.

PROGRAM ENDING

Renew rent subsidy: NDP

More than 1,200 families could be out in the cold if the province does not extend a rent subsidy program, Alberta's New Democrats say.

MLA Rachel Notley says the province must act now because the subsidy is set to end in December.

She says the Tories have reduced its investment in rent subsidies to $75.3 million from $159 million in the past three years, a decrease of more than 50 per cent.

But Notley says rents have continued to rise and the number of low-income rental apartments has been going down. She says people could be left on the streets or pushed into sub-standard housing unless the program is renewed.

Inn staff tied up, robbed of cash

Armed robbers tied up the employees of a southeast Calgary inn late Wednesday and made off with cash inside several video-lottery terminals.

Police are hunting for two men after the incident, which took place at about 11 a.m. at the Stetson Village Inn on Macleod Trail Southeast.

Both robbers were carrying handguns, police said.

Witnesses say the suspects were wearing black hoodies and their faces were covered by bandanas.

Happy 100th, Connaught!

CANDICE WARD
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

It was a day of music and original songs written by students as Connaught School celebrated its 100th anniversary on Thursday.

"To go to a school so established will help me get the education I need to be the person that I want to be," said Mustafa Saleh, a Grade 6 student.

Saleh and his family moved to Calgary from Iraq in 2009 and he has been attending Connaught for two years.

He was one of three student MCs at the festivities.

The audience was treated to musical performances by students, including one piece written specially for Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi, who was in attendance.

Nenshi was delighted by the ditty and promised to share it with former mayor Ralph Klein, who was also named in the song.

Undead still a popular costume choice

CANDICE WARD/FOR METRO

▶ Amanda Bailey, Chantelle Grayson and Loudya Fournier, from The Masque on Macleod Trail, show off some of this year's hottest Halloween costumes on Wednesday.

Adults can expect to spend between $80 to $130 for Halloween attire

CANDICE WARD
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Zombies will rule once again this Halloween.

With a less-than-spectacular year at the movies, Calgary costume shops are seeing people be a little more creative with their costume choices this year, with people adding a zombie twist.

"You can zombie-fy anything," said Margot Loveseth, owner of The Costume Shoppe on Blackfoot Trail.

Loveseth said people are leaning a little more towards television characters as well this year.

"Movies are often what generate the monster trends, but this year, that is not the case," said Loveseth.

One movie has inspired a lot of people to shop at one costume shop this year.

The Masque on Macleod Trail has a number of people come in looking to put together a Black Swan costume.

"It is kind of neat that people are dressing up a little more elegant this year," said Cynthia Collens, owner of the Masque.

She also said pirates are still popular among men and women. "I don't think you will ever get rid of pirates," said Collens.

If you are looking to rent a costume this Halloween, both Collens and Loveseth recommend reserving your costumes early.

‘You can overcome obstacles’

Columbine-massacre survivor speaks to Alberta teens about accepting others 12 years later, witness to mass high school shooting spreading positive message

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
@METRONEWS.CA

Evan Todd has seen the worst that can happen when teens head down the wrong path.

On April 20, 1999, the sophomore at Columbine High School found himself at the mercy of two mass murderers.

Dozens of fellow students weren’t as lucky in the 46-minute shooting rampage by Dylan Klebold, 17, and Eric Harris, 18, in their Littleton, Colo., high school. Both shooters and 13 others ended up dead. Twenty-four more, including Todd, were injured.

“I was the first student shot in the library and the last one to speak to the murderers before they ended up killing themselves,” said Todd, now 27.

He appreciates that the horror he witnessed that day, which left four of his friends slain and others unable to walk, could have given him a negative outlook.

“School life was forever different,” he said. “But we chose as a school to try and take a negative and make it a positive.”

Now he speaks to teens, parents and teachers about the dangers of bullying and violence, and the importance of acknowledging potential victims.

“I really encourage students to watch what they’re saying and doing,” said Todd, while in Fox Creek recently speaking to students.

Bolsa witness jailed

15 The Jane Doe witness in Calgary’s Bolsa murder trial will spend 15 months behind bars for refusing to testify.

A key witness who refused to testify in Calgary’s recent Bolsa murder trial has been sent to prison for over a year.

The woman, identified as Jane Doe, refused a series of questions posed by both Crown and defence lawyers Oct. 5 during the first-degree murder trial for Michael Roberto and Nathan Zuccherato.

Both men were found guilty on three counts of murder each Monday and have been sentenced to life in prison without chance of parole for 25 years.

On New Year’s Day 2009, gang member Sanjeev Mann, his associate Aaron Bendle and innocent bystander Keni Su’a were gunned down at the Bolsa restaurant.

Shooting lands two in custody

Two men are in custody following an overnight shooting Thursday in the Alberta community of Langdon.

RCMP believe the incident was fuelled by alcohol and say it was only by sheer luck that no one was killed.

The owner of a home near where the shooting occurred did suffer some injuries from metal debris, according to a release. Both he and a friend believed to have been at the home remained in custody Thursday afternoon.

Firearms-related charges are pending.

The owner of a U.S. exotic animal farm who released dozens of tigers, lions and others beasts from their cages in a final act shot himself to death and then was bitten by one of his own animals, a sheriff said Thursday.

Google search for 'where to commit murder' was entered into family laptop, court told Expert witness to testify

▶ Tooba Mohammad Yahya and husband Mohammad Shafia and their son Hamed Mohammed Shafia are escorted by police officers into the courthouse.

A Montreal family couldn't bear the "treachery" of their three teenaged daughters having boyfriends, so they drowned them and the father's first wife, pushing a car into a canal and making the scene look like an accident, court heard Thursday.

Days after the bodies were found the father was recorded saying, "There is nothing more valuable than our honour."

Tooba Mohammad Yahya, 41, her husband Mohammad Shafia, 58, and their son, Hamed Mohammad Shafia, 20, are each charged with four counts of first-degree murder.

Three teenage Shafia sisters, Zainab, 19, Sahar, 17, and Geeti, 13, along with Shafia's first wife, Rona Amir Mohammad, 50, were found dead inside a submerged black Nissan Sentra discovered June 30, 2009 in the Rideau Canal. The family had stopped in Kingston after a trip to Niagara Falls.

"Even if they hoist me up onto the gallows, nothing is more dear to me than my honour," Mohammad said. "Let's leave our destiny to God, and may God never make me, you or your mother honourless.... There is nothing more valuable than our honour." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Details

- The cause of death was drowning, but it's impossible to tell if they drowned in the canal or somewhere else, Crown attorney Laurie Lacelle told the court. Moderate bruising was also found on the crowns of all the victims' heads except Sahar, she said.
- Crown attorney told the jury the family was upset that the girls had boyfriends and had resisted wearing the hijab.

The Rainbow Bridge

Just this side of Heaven is a place called Rainbow Bridge. When an animal dies that has been especially close to someone here, that pet goes to Rainbow Bridge. There are meadows and hills for all of our special friends so they can run and play together. There is plenty of food, water and sunshine and our friends are warm and comfortable.

All the animals who had been ill and old are restored to health and vigor; those who were hurt or maimed are made whole and strong again, just as we remember them in our dreams of days and times gone by. The animals are happy and content, except for one small thing; they miss someone very special, someone who was left behind.

They all run and play together, but the day comes when one suddenly stops and looks into the distance. His bright eyes are intent; his eager body begins to quiver. Suddenly, he breaks from the group, flying over the green grass, faster and faster. You have been spotted, and when you and your special friend finally meet, you cling together in joyous reunion, never to be parted again. The happy kisses rain upon your face; your hands again caress the beloved head, and you look once more into those trusting eyes, so long gone from your life, but never absent from your heart.

Then you cross the Rainbow Bridge together...

1. NTC fighters' attack on Sirte

Following a 90-minute battle Thursday morning, fighters said with the help of NATO airstrikes they had taken control of Sirte, ending a two-month siege and eliminating the last important holdout post for troops loyal to the deposed leader.

Reports suggest that Gadhafi along with key loyalists tried to flee east toward Misrata as the last battle was ongoing.

2. Rebels find Gadhafi in pipe

The colonel's convoy was reportedly ambushed, with Gadhafi managing to flee.

The ousted leader was located some time later in a storm-water drainpipe.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot!" — the apparent words of the colonel as he pleaded with NTC rebels for their mercy, according to fighter Mohammed Al Bibi.

Precise circumstances of Gadhafi's death remain unclear

Gadhafi death buries regime

Moammar Gadhafi in 2009

Dragged from hiding in a drainage pipe, a wounded Moammar Gadhafi raised his hands and begged revolutionary fighters: "Don't kill me, my sons." Within an hour, he was dead, but not before jubilant Libyans had vented decades of hatred by pulling the eccentric dictator's hair and parading his bloodied body on the hood of a truck.

The death Thursday of Gadhafi, two months after he was driven from power and into hiding, decisively buries the nearly 42-year regime that had turned the oil-rich country into an international pariah and his own personal fiefdom.

It also thrusts Libya into a new age in which its transitional leaders must overcome deep divisions and rebuild nearly all its institutions from scratch to achieve dreams of democracy.

"We have been waiting for this historic moment for a long time. Moammar Gadhafi has been killed," Prime Minister Mahmoud Jibril said in the capital of Tripoli. "I would like to call on Libyans to put aside the grudges and only say one word, which is Libya, Libya, Libya."

Other leaders have fallen in the Arab Spring uprisings, but Gadhafi, 69, is the first to be killed. He was killed in his hometown of Sirte, where revolutionary fighters overwhelmed the last of his loyalist supporters Thursday after weeks of heavy battles.

Harper hails end of dictator

Canada's military mission in Libya is expected to end by early November following Thursday's death of Moammar Gadhafi.

The dictator's demise marked the end of four decades of erratic and brutal rule that saw world leaders both engage and cast out the leader of the oil-rich nation before he was finally driven from power by his own people.

"The Libyan people can finally turn the page on 42 years of vicious oppression and continue their journey toward a better future," Prime Minister Stephen Harper said.

But their actions in the final moments of Gadhafi's life are now under scrutiny with observers concerned revolutionaries may have meted out the same kind of violent justice that characterized Gadhafi's reign.

3. How Gadhafi met his end

There is uncertainty how exactly Gadhafi died.

An alleged eyewitness said that he saw the colonel being shot in the abdomen.

Grisly mobile-phone video footage appears to show a bloodied Gadhafi being roughly handled.

Other footage exclusive to Al-Jazeera shows Gadhafi's shirtless body on the ground.

4. NTC confirm Gadhafi death

Following word that Gadhafi had initially been captured, confirmation of the colonel's death was made official. "We announce to the world that Moammar Gadhafi has been killed at the hands of the revolutionaries," Abdul Hafiz Ghoga, vice-chairman of the NTC said. Reports have surfaced that Gadhafi's corpse is at a mosque in Misrata. ANTHONY JOHNSTON

Taken alive

- Amnesty International said an independent and impartial inquiry was needed into the circumstances surrounding Gadhafi's death. Rebels had earlier promised he would be brought before the courts and Arab TV stations broadcast footage of him being taken alive.
- Had he appeared in court it could have been very embarrassing for countries that had been doing business with Libya before the revolution, said Fen Hampson, director of the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University.

This PhD thesis got the rhythm

Biologist's dance video on doctoral work wins international award as creative passion surfaces

A Canadian scientist has won an international award for her PhD thesis – the dance remix of it anyway.

Queen's University biologist Emma Ware is one of four winners of Dance Your PhD, a unique and lighthearted annual contest that asks researchers to convert their doctoral thesis into a dance video.

"I wasn't expecting that, but it is exciting," Ware said upon hearing the results Thursday.

Her thesis, entitled A Study of Social Interactivity Using Pigeon Courtship, yielded a moody, black-and-white video that shows how responses from female pigeons affect mating displays from the males.

The judges, who included both professional dancers and scientists, praised it for mirroring exactly with the dancers the experimental processes that Ware used on her pigeons.

"I've always been very interested and passionate about dance as well as science," said Ware, who helped start a dance club at her university. "For me, it was kind of like two worlds colliding and this was a great opportunity."

Not that science and art are necessarily opposed, she added. Despite her win, however, Ware won't be continuing her research.

"Right now, I'm trying to get into medical school." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fun break

- The idea behind the contest is to give young scientists a fun break from the pressure of fulfilling the requirements of their doctorate, said founder John Bohannon, a science journalist and sometime Harvard researcher.
- But he said it also gets the researchers thinking about what it takes to get their work across to the public.

Tweets should be bilingual: N.B. report

New Brunswick's official languages commissioner says politicians and government agencies should use both official languages when they use Twitter and Facebook.

Michel Carrier says when elected members engage the public on social media websites, they should do so in both French and English, just as they would when sending a letter or fax.

Carrier issued the call in his annual report released Thursday.

He says he doesn't want his recommendation to discourage politicians or civil servants from using social media, though he doesn't use Twitter himself. New Brunswick is Canada's only officially bilingual province. THE CANADIAN PRESS

France's first daughter: Giulia

▶ French President Nicolas Sarkozy receives an oak sapling as a gift in honour of the birth of his daughter.

Proud papa Nicolas Sarkozy, the first French president to have a baby in office, says he and wife Carla Bruni-Sarkozy feel "a very profound happiness" over the birth of their baby girl — the couple's first child together.

Mother and daughter, he added, are doing very well.

After a day of keeping the nation guessing, the first lady announced the baby's name on her website Thursday night: Giulia.

"I'm very touched by the numerous messages of congratulations that are coming in since the birth of our little girl Giulia," Bruni-Sarkozy wrote.

"We are lucky to have been blessed by a new arrival," Sarkozy told journalists on a visit Thursday to a waste-management plant in western France. "All parents can understand the very profound happiness Carla and I feel, and at the same time everyone can understand that this happiness is all the more profound because it is private." Pieces of a retired German satellite hurtling toward the atmosphere may crash to earth this weekend, the German Aerospace Center said Thursday.

Scientists have now honed their initial estimate of when the satellite would hit from a span of four days to either Saturday or Sunday. As it nears, they will eventually be able to estimate impact within a window of about 10 hours.

Parts of the satellite, which is the size of a minivan, will burn up during re-entry but up to 30 fragments weighing a total of 1.87 tons (1.7 metric tons) could crash into the Earth with a speed of up to 280 mph (450 kph). THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taking jacuzzi love to new heights

Group of adrenaline junkies spend their downtime setting up hot tubs in the most extreme places on Earth

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
METRO WORLD NEWS

SBASTIEN MARTINET/SWNS.COM

▶This is the terrifying moment a group of hot tub fanatics suspend themselves 150 metre from the ground.

Dominique Weibel, founding member of Jaccuzzi.ch, tells Metro about his latest stunt that includes teetering 150 metres above the Trient Gorge in Switzerland in a hot tub.

What kind of antics did you get up to in the tub?
We were celebrating two birthdays, so we had a cake and one guy brought a guitar for some sing-alongs. It was morning so we also had breakfast: toast with Nutella chocolate spread.

Did you feel a little edgy at times?
[Because] we were worked on the project for nine months, we were very focused. Overall, it took 2,500 hours of planning. It wasn't some crazy stunt we decided to do when we were out drinking the night before. We had a lot of training to get used to being suspended in the air.

How long did it take for you to set up this stunt?
Twenty-five of us spent six hours assembling the jacuzzi on top of the New Gueuroz Bridge. Pretty much all of the cables and materials belonged to people on the team as we're all experienced mountaineers. We did pre-heat the water on top of the bridge using some gas burners. We were in the tub for just two-and-a-half hours.

Are you planning to repeat this stunt or compete a more daring one? (The team once had a jacuzzi party on top of Mont Blanc, France in 2007.)
For the moment, we have no plans to repeat it. But when we do, it will be a surprise...

U.K. navy seizes pirate mothership

British marines detained four suspected pirates and freed 20 crew members who had been held hostage on a pirate "mothership" in the Indian Ocean, the government said Thursday.

The Ministry of Defence said that the dhow had been hijacked by pirates to use as a base and was involved in attacks on merchant shipping.

The ministry said pirates were holding a Pakistani crew of 20 on board when the British vessels closed in on the dhow last Friday off the coast of Somalia.

Greek MPs pass tough austerity bill

Unions keep services crippled on second day of general strike
Anarchists run amok in Athens

Greek lawmakers passed a deeply resented new austerity bill Thursday, caving in to the demands of international creditors in order to avoid a national bankruptcy, as a second day of riots left one protester dead and more than 100 people wounded.

The austerity measures won 154-144 in the 300-member parliament despite dissent from a prominent Socialist lawmaker who voted against a key article of the bill. The vote was expected to pave the way for a vital $11-billion US payout from creditors within weeks so Greece can stay solvent.

Clouds of tear gas choked central Athens ahead of the vote as riot police intervened to separate rival demonstrators who fought for several hours with firebombs and stones outside parliament.

A 53-year-old construction worker died of heart failure after attending a mass rally, while 74 protesters and 32 police officers were hospitalized with injuries, police and state hospital officials said.

Police said they detained 79 people suspected of violent conduct.

After initial hours of calm, the rioting erupted when hundreds of masked anarchist youths attacked a peaceful rally of about 50,000 people outside parliament, pelting them with firebombs and jagged chunks of marble. The Communist-backed union members counterattacked, and chaos ensued as the two sides fought with sticks and rocks before riot police fired volleys of tear gas to separate them.

Former labour minister Louka Katseli voted against one article that scales back collective bargaining rights for workers. Although she voted in favour of the overall bill, Prime Minister George Papandreou expelled her from the party's parliamentary group.

Bangkok braces for floods

Authorities open floodgates in attempt to let water flow into sea

The threat has loomed large over this giant metropolis for weeks: Floodwaters could rapidly swamp glitzy downtown Bangkok, ruining treasured ancient palaces and chic boutiques on skyscraper-lined avenues in the heart of the Thai economy.

The floods haven't come, but the sense of imminent doom is growing by the day, seeping in through worried conversations, school closings and emptied store shelves. One measure of the fear: the protective walls of sandbags scattered across the city's canals, homes and shop-fronts are expanding in number and height daily.

Honduras top court clears army generals

Honduras' Supreme Court has cleared six army generals accused of toppling former president Manuel Zelaya and flying him to Costa Rica in 2009.

The Supreme Court voted 12-3 to reject abuse-of-authority charges against now-retired Gens. Romeo Vasquez, Luis Prince, Venancio Cervantes, Miguel Garcia, Juan Pablo Rodriguez and Carlos Cuellar.

The court said in a news release yesterday that all six have been released from detention.

Soldiers escorted the left-leaning Zelaya out of Honduras in June 2009 after he defied a Supreme Court order to drop plans to hold a referendum on reforming the constitution.

Zelaya says the court decision is "unjust" but expected.

Wall Street protesters look beyond traditional media to spread message

The Wall Street protest against economic inequality has a chaotic and complicated relationship with media that has helped spread its message across the world from a small Manhattan park.

Like the demonstrations themselves, Occupy Wall Street's media operation has no clear leader or simple message.

Some of its volunteers work to help reporters whose cameras and microphones dot Zuccotti Park, even as many protesters express an aversion toward the press.

The media volunteers have counted at least 500 outlets that have sent reporters to the park, including a New Zealand newspaper, a college newspaper from Texas and a documentary filmmaker from Australia.

If asked, the volunteers work as "fixers" for reporters who want to interview specific types of people — for example, a student overloaded with college loan debts or a jobless middle-aged person, said Jeff Smith, a volunteer who works in advertising.

Julianne Pepitone, a reporter for CNNMoney.com, said that in the early days, media volunteers would often approach her in the park and ask if she needed any help. It struck her as a well-oiled machine.

Still, it can get frustrating covering a leaderless movement. "When you speak to these people, they are very careful to say, 'I don't speak for the whole revolution. No one does,'" she said.

What good is growth?

Despite GDP gains, we're working harder to stay afloat

A generation of solid economic growth has meant little in the everyday lives of most Canadians, according to a new index of well-being.

The finding is a yellow light for decision-makers that social unrest is just around the corner unless deep changes are made, warns Roy Romanow, the advisory board chairman of the University of Waterloo group that created the index.

The index suggests the middle class, in particular, is eroding.

"There are some very, very troubling signs," Romanow said in an interview.

"I think if we continue on this trajectory we're going to have bigger and bigger disparities. You can never build a solid political, social and economic community with wide disparities."

Index findings

- Canadians are working out more and taking longer vacations, but they are spending less time engaged in arts and culture.
- Health care saw a slight gain — we're smoking less and getting our flu shots, but diabetes and depression were on the rise.

The Canadian Index of Wellbeing is meant to be GDP's alter ego, measuring the quality of life in society in ways gross domestic product does not.

The index has been years in the making, pulling together 64 indicators to track Canadians' progress in areas such as community spirit, education, health, environment, leisure and democratic engagement.

While GDP measures what companies and government produce, the well-being index measures how Canada and its people are faring.

It shows that between 1994 and 2008, well-being improved by just 11 per cent. The economy over that period grew by 31 per cent.

So while investment and corporate activity were ticking along at a decent pace, Canadian households saw only minor improvements in their lifestyle.

The index's subcomponents show that quality of life actually deteriorated over that time frame in areas such as the environment, leisure and culture, and time use.

A typical household is now working harder and longer to keep on track financially, at the expense of having free time with family and friends.

Tim Hortons coffee cups go green out East

JENNIFER TAPLIN IN HALIFAX

Your Tim Hortons coffee cup will soon be reincarnated as a takeout tray.

Thursday, the Canadian coffee-serving institution announced its plan to divert mounds of paper cups from landfill in Nova Scotia.

Tim Hortons and Scotia Recycling worked out a program two years ago to collect the cups and ship them to paper manufacturer CKF Inc. to make them into trays.

The program is now phased in at all of the province's 156 restaurants via four-stream recycling units that will collect the cups.

Peladeau on the defence

Quebecor chief says the empire has the right to probe the CBC

Quebecor president Pierre-Karl Peladeau insists his company is not engaged in a vendetta against its CBC competitor, but is instead upholding a public duty to probe the affairs of a government-funded Crown corporation.

The media mogul appeared Thursday at a parliamentary committee hearing into why the CBC is fighting access-to-information laws in the courts.

"Despite what some may think, in other words, that we are waging a war against CBC-Radio Canada, we believe that these requests are not only legal but also legitimate and in the public interest and in keeping with the act."
QUEBECOR PRESIDENT PIERRE-KARL PELADEAU

The corporation says it has been swamped with hundreds of information requests, mainly from Quebecor's many media outlets, and suspects an orchestrated campaign to damage it.

But Peladeau denies that the quest for information is anything more than independent journalists doing their work.

Still, he went on to threaten legal action against the CBC for putting out a statement earlier this week about Peladeau's own lack of accountability in receiving public funding.

Rare-earth producer halts production

97% China has about 30 per cent of global rare earth deposits but accounts for 97 per cent of production. Beijing has alarmed global manufacturers by reducing exports.

China's biggest producer of rare earths is suspending production for one month in hopes of boosting slumping prices of the exotic minerals used in mobile phones and other high-tech products.

This week's move by Inner Mongolia Baotou Steel Rare-Earth (Group) might fuel tensions with the United States and Europe. They have questioned Beijing's decision announced earlier to limit exports while it tries to develop its own manufacturers of magnets and other products made of rare earths.

METRO

Is it just me, or does the world get weirder by the week?

Consider the following evidence, as we assemble this week's zeitgeist, item by item:

1 Moammar Gadhafi: It's been a bad year for jihadists and despots: Mubarak, bin Laden and now the terrorist clown (or is that clown terrorist?) gets his.

2 Bicoastal bliss: The feds launch a lot of boats with $35 billion. Stephen Harper could get elected king this morning, at least in Vancouver and Halifax, where the ship-building industries are enjoying an instant revival. We's the bys what build the boats. Buy Canadian, eh?

3 Shark-fin ban: Toronto city council votes Monday on a motion to ban the sale of shark fins and shark-fin soup. Did you know that 73 million sharks a year are killed for their fins and that some species have been reduced by 90 per cent? Save the sharks! Switch to tomato bisque!

4 Chinese toddler: A poor little two-year-old girl was run over — twice — by some jerks, and more than a dozen people walked around her as she lay screaming for nearly 10 minutes. It's causing a lot of hand-wringing in China. Let's just hope that when they stop wringing, they actually start helping people who need a hand.

5 Jungle book: The other unhappy story everyone's talking about is the guy who let all his lions and tigers loose in Ohio and then killed himself. It turned into a bad day for the whole menagerie as state deputies turned into big-game hunters, and now most of the lions, tigers and, oh my, bears are dead. At last report, there was one lone monkey out there. My advice: don't monkey around. Get out of Ohio.

6 Torture enablers are people too: George W. Bush comes to Metro Vancouver Friday, and the Occupy people want him arrested for war crimes. Hail (and rocks and rotten tomatoes) to the Chief.

7 True blue: Steven Slater, the guy who escaped from his job as a Jet Blue flight attendant — literally — down the emergency chute, avoids hard time. But has to pay the airline back for damaging their chute: $831.25 bucks a month. And he thought life was tedious before. But then there's the book tour to look forward to.

8 BieberWatch: Justin Bieber's tour stops in Peru, the home of his doppelganger, Alejandro Avilez Kamp, the Peruvian Justin Bieber. Geez, there are two of them.

This city council is no better than any of the previous ones.

It is more like a dictatorship!

Who wants to have to pay for another bin? It is unacceptable that everyone has to have a compost bin.

There should be a clause to opt out of this farce. Let those who like this idea opt for and pay for them.

Why is this being thrust down our throats?

Do I have to pay for this even if I compost for my garden and have nothing left over for the bin?

Now, some may think it's far-fetched, but has anyone thought of the possibility of someone in city hall getting kickbacks from the bin manufacturers?

Don't say it can't happen here.... I have seen it happen more often than not.

Just wondering aloud. Questions should be asked — nothing is sacrosanct.

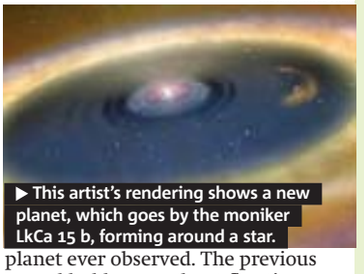
Just like that, a planet is born

KAREN L. TERAMURA/UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII INSTITUTE FOR ASTRONOMY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



▶ This artist's rendering shows a new planet, which goes by the moniker LkCa 15 b, forming around a star.

Astronomers have captured the first direct image of a planet being born.

Adam Kraus, of the University of Hawaii's Institute for Astronomy, said the planet is being formed out of dust and gas circling a two-million-year-old star about 450 light years from Earth.

The planet itself, based on scientific models of how planets form, is estimated to have started taking shape about 50,000 to 100,000 years ago.

Called LkCa 15 b, it's the youngest planet ever observed. The previous record holder was about five times older.

Scientists hadn't been able to see such young planets before because the bright light of the stars they're orbiting outshines them.

Synopsis

- The new film is a prequel to the first films and follows the template set by the first two movies. Set in the VHS era of 1988, recurring characters Katie and Kristi Rey are little girls living with their mother (Lauren Bittner) and her boyfriend (Christopher Nicholas Smith), a wedding video editor. When they start hearing strange sounds in their new house, he sets up video cameras to find out what's keeping them up at night. Is the boyfriend obsessed or is the house possessed?

Reel Guys
RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Richard: Mark, I have to say, I'm a bit of a sucker for things that go bump in the night and even though the Paranormal Activity series should be a little long in the tooth by now, it still made me jump. Are you as big a fraidy cat as I am?

Mark: I usually pop a Xanax before I see a horror film so I can better appreciate the movie for its technical merits. But I didn't for this one. And yes, the movie did frighten me, but only in the last 15 minutes, which were terrific. I found it a bit too long getting going and had a bit too much dark humour to create that air of dread right off the top. The first two installments of the franchise really creeped me out; this one is better made, but didn't give me the punch until the end.

RC: This one is 99 per cent anticipation, one per cent payoff, but the one per cent is pretty good. I think the low-fi feel of the movies — the picture really does look like home video most of the time — combined with really natural performances from unknown actors make the Paranormal Activity movies feel like real "found footage" movies. Most movies of the genre are a little too slick. These aren't. There's no music, no stars and it feels like you're watching something that could be real ... almost.

MB: Yes, and that's not easy. It takes real filmmaking talent to look this artless. One thing I love about the series, and this movie in particular, is how much of the plot takes place at the edges of the screen. You really have to pay attention to see what's really happening in the frame. And the static takes almost feel like some European art film, although the technical innovation of the oscillator-cam in this film is inspired. I was also pleased that the movie had a backstory and plot, although, cleverly, you don't realize it until the movie is done.

RC: This one is a prequel, featuring the recurring characters Katie and Kristi Rey as creepy little kids. Not sure what's next though ... maybe Paranormal Activity in Outer Space?

MB: Well, before the screening, we were warned that to prevent privacy, the theatre would be continuously scanned using night vision technology. Paranormal Activity 4, anyone?

Johnny Depp shares details of his unique bond with the late writer Hunter S. Thompson The Rum Diary has him becoming Hunter, again

HANDOUT

Johnny Depp describes his friendship with Hunter S. Thompson as a 'love affair.'

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Johnny Depp has been working to bring Hunter S. Thompson's the Rum Diary to the screen since shortly after the two of them discovered the manuscript for the book in Thompson's attic. With the film finally hitting theatres, Depp shares with Metro, in his own words, some of his memories of his close friendship with the late author.

Meeting Hunter for the first time

It was around Christmas time of 1994. I was in Aspen, and this friend of mine said, 'You should come to the Woody Creek Tavern. I'll have Hunter come down if you want to meet him.' Somewhere around midnight the front door opened and all I could see initially were sparks — just sparks shooting everywhere, and then people jumping for cover. You could hear this sort of muffled, 'Out of my way, you bastards!' The sea parted, and the sparks stopped and he arrived right in front of me, and then this southern gentleman came over and said, 'My name's Hunter, how do you do?' And that was it. From that second on, if we were apart we were on the phone constantly. It was a love affair, a major love affair that hung around until he made his exit."

Keeping up with the King of Gonzo Journalism

"We shared the same sense of adventure. One of the things I'll cherish all my life is that whenever Hunter felt the need to wander out and explore, he'd call me. He'd say, 'Colonel' — he used to call me Colonel, Col. Depp — 'Colonel, I need you in Havana in a week.' I was in the middle of a film in England. I said, 'I think I could probably work it out, all right.' And then you find yourself on a plane to Havana. These memories are seared onto my brain."

On the road with Hunter

We were on a book tour, and he wanted me to go on the road with him as his road manager and as his head of security. He would refer to me as Ray, his head of security. So he'd say, 'I'd like you to meet Ray, my head of security.' And they were like, 'That's Johnny Depp.' And he'd go, 'No! His name is Ray.' And he just stayed with that. We ended up in San Francisco because his back went out on him on the tour. So I was essentially locked in a hotel room with him, in a suite with Hunter — just me and him for five straight days. And so all the stuff you read about in Fear and Loathing with the grapefruits and saving the shrimp cocktails, all that stuff? All true.

Learning of Hunter's suicide

"I was here, in Los Angeles. If you knew Hunter — if you really spent time with him and you knew how he negotiated life and dictated the way he was going to live his life — you knew he wasn't going to be the guy who just sort of slipped off the chair and went away. You knew it was going to be self-inflicted. I wasn't particularly shocked, because you knew it would happen one day. But then you start cursing the bastard, thinking, Come on, man. One last phone call? Maybe some hideous practical joke before you do it? But he did actually ultimately have the best practical joke of all, because his last wish was to be blown out of a giant cannon in his back yard. Now, there are no giant cannons of that size. He wanted 150 feet of cannon, and then I found out that the Statue of Liberty was 151 feet tall, and I thought he'd really hate me if it were any smaller than the Statue of Liberty. So we changed the plans and we built it up to 153 feet tall. We broke the records then. The great joke is that we were all forced to focus on something else as opposed to focusing on the loss of a great, great friend. Now it was a question of how do we shoot the bastard into the stratosphere legally and get away with it?"

Becoming Hunter

The Rum Diary marks Depp's second on-screen appearance as an alter ego of Hunter S. Thompson, after first taking on Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas in 1998. But Depp wasn't the first person to try to embody Thompson, and his predecessor had some advice, it turned out.

"I think it was the first day of shooting on Fear and Loathing, and I had already sponged up so much of Hunter that I couldn't help but be Hunter," Depp says. "And I got this phone call, first day of shooting, from Bill Murray, who'd played him in Where the Buffalo Roam. And Bill says, 'Johnny, I just want to warn you, you've got to be careful.' I said, 'About what?' He said, 'Well, you know the way you become as Hunter and the way you speak as Hunter, how you sort of learn how to think like him? It never goes away.' And I was already in so deep, it was like, 'OK! There's nothing I can do about it now.'"

Johnny English Reborn
Genre: Comedy
Director: Oliver Parker
Stars: Rowan Atkinson, Rosamund Pike
⊕⊕⊕

You can be excused for questioning the need to resurrect Rowan Atkinson's James Bond spoof eight years after we all roundly ignored the original. The sequel still relies on bad puns and sight gags to hold the attention of its audience (mostly pre-pubescent boys). But as far as movies with bad puns and sight gags go, this one is pretty good. Thank Atkinson for that, as he still has the ability to make this character loveable while mugging for the camera.

Director: Paul W.S. Anderson
Stars: Logan Lerman, Milla Jovovich, Orlando Bloom
⊕⊕½

The first in what appears to be a planned franchise of films, this steampunk-influenced take on Alexander Dumas' enduring classic weaves a convoluted plot without offering much in the way of resolution. What saves the film from total disaster is a crack-supporting cast led by Milla Jovovich and Christoph Walz who get equal screen time as the titular heroes. Hard to follow, the imaginative action scenes and playful support characters save this film from total disaster.

Eco-terrorist Wiebo Ludwig's clashes with the oil and gas industry in Alberta have been well documented in the media, but this doc goes a long way to giving Ludwig's side of the story. While it's easy to sympathize with concerns over the pollution of the air and water table around his family, Ludwig's knack for playing the victim and his flagrant obscuring of the truth ensures most viewers will leave unconvinced of his innocence.

▶ From left, David Adams Richards, Jane Urquhart and Adrienne Clarkson will all be presenters on the Citytv series Extraordinary Canadians.

ANNE BRODIE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Glenn Gould, Emily Carr, Norman Bethune, Pierre Trudeau and L.M. Montgomery have something in common. They are extraordinary Canadians.

Canada is a land of pioneering, spirited and determined citizens; we are world class artists, scientists, doctors, statesmen, activists, writers, entrepreneurs, philanthropists and, of course, comedians.

Extraordinary Canadians shape our national identity and international reputation as a humane, peaceful nation of progressive thinkers.

Producer Kenneth Hirsch celebrates that ideal in a Citytv series, based on Penguin Canada's acclaimed biography collection Extraordinary Canadians.

Each episode features a renowned author presenting one of 12 figures who made a difference, since the earliest days of Canada's nationhood.

The 12-part series Extraordinary Canadians, introduced by John Ralston Saul and narrated by Holly O'Brien, will air Sundays beginning this weekend on Citytv at 8.30 p.m. ET/PT and repeat on The Biography Channel, Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. ET/PT, premiering Saturday, Oct. 29. It will debut in Mandarin, Hindi and Italian on OMNI Television in spring 2012.

Book series

▶ Penguin Canada's 18-book series Extraordinary Canadians is the most ambitious biography collection in Canadian history. Six will be available in paperback this month.

TV Picks

▶ Jennifer Morrison stars in Once Upon a Time.

Shining a light on George

DOCUMENTARY. The life of George Harrison is chronicled by Martin Scorsese in a new documentary airing Saturday.

George Harrison: Living in the Material World includes interviews with the former Beatle, concert footage and scenes from private home movies. (HBO Canada)

Daughter of Snow White

FAIRY-TALE. The new fairy-tale series Once Upon a Time premieres Sunday with Jennifer Morrison playing a 28-year-old woman who is told she is the long, lost daughter of Snow White and Prince Charming.

She's incredulous, but soon starts wondering whether it could actually be true. (CTV)

RECYCLING MUSIC WILL ONLY GO SO FAR

SOUND CHECK

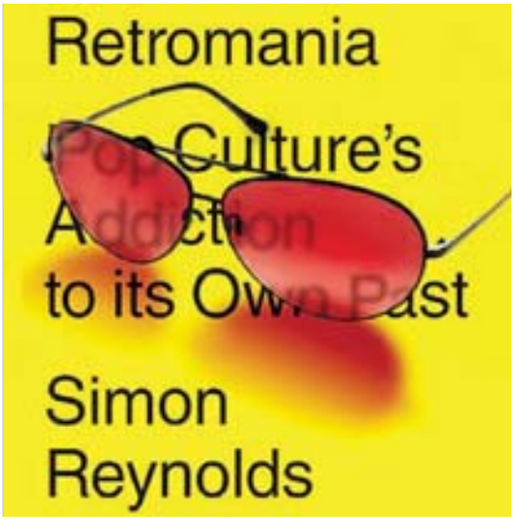
ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

I am working my way through Retromania by Simon Reynolds, a book that explores why we seem so fascinated with fetishizing music of the recent past.tro can be loosely defined as everything old is new again. Anything can be retro: fashion, art, advertising, movies, TV and, of course, music.

Reynolds points out that for the first time in human history, we've never been this obsessed with our own immediate past. Retro isn't some antiquarian pursuit. We're nostalgic for things within recent living memory. We still worship the music of the 60s. The rock giants of the 70s — Zeppelin, the Stones — are as big as they ever were. Clubs still hold Retro 80s nights and acts like OMD and Spandau Ballet are on the road again. Lately, it's been all about celebrating the grunge era of the 90s with reunions (Soundgarden), documentaries (Pearl Jam) and commemorative CD reissues (Nirvana, U2).

Meanwhile, current acts have become very successful by recycling the past. I love the White Stripes, but hasn't Jack White just put a fresher garage-rock spin on the blues? The Strokes, Franz Ferdinand and Interpol are New Wave and post-punk with new coats of paint. And while Adele, Amy and Duffy have made brilliant records, they sound like something transported ahead from 1966. And think about this: give me a single new sound/genre that will endure beyond the first years of the 21st century? There have been a few — grime, dubstep, maybe whatever Kanye is doing — but I'm not sure we'll be wistful about this music ten years from now. A big part of why we keep recycling the music of the old innovators is because of technology. With the Internet, it's never been easier to access the past. And because so much of our immediate musical past has been preserved through YouTube, iTunes and millions of fan websites, it's easier to mine it for ideas and influences. That's great. But what happens when we run out of the past? Do we just start over? Or has as this music been around long enough that it's become an artifact and can now only feed on itself? Or will someone have come along to push popular music forward?

These are all extremely big questions. Something to think about the next time you hear about the next big reunion tour.



"A big part of why we keep recycling the music of the old innovators is because of technology. With the Internet, it's never been easier to access the past."

Dum Dum speaks to Metro about changing up their musical approach

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

LAUREN DUKOFF/METRO WORLD NEWS

▶ The Dum Dum Girls

The difference between the music of I Will Be the Dum Dum Girls' 2010 debut, and this year's Only in Dreams, is undeniable. Yet singer and guitarist Kristen Gundred tries to deny it.

At least at first.

"To me it's not a dramatic shift," she says. "It's part of a process."

The singer, who writes all of the songs and goes by the stage name of Dee Dee, says that if there is any difference, it may have to do with her recording setup.

The Dum Dum Girls EP from this summer, He Gets Me High, is a perfect transition between the two types of Dum Dum sounds. It also features a killer cover of The Smiths' There Is A Light That Never Goes Out.

"A lot of times, it's just a song I love," says Dee Dee of her covers philosophy. "Or it's something where regardless of the style ... there's an undeniable pop element of the song I can cover in a very Dum Dum Girls way."

Metronomy is no misnomer

After winning the U.K. equivalent of a Grammy, they haven't missed a beat in dealing with their new fame

▶ Joseph Mount is the frontman for Metronomy.

Three albums in and Metronomy, the electro-pop quartet based in Brighton, England, are only now getting name recognition in the U.S., Canada and in their native country. The second part is especially odd, because earlier this year they received a Mercury Prize nomination (the U.K. equivalent to a Grammy) for their latest album, The English Riviera. But frontman and Metronomy mastermind Joseph Mount is philosophical about the newfound fame.

"Certainly with the English music press, you sometimes need to prove your worth," he says. "Some bands get this massive hype from the beginning, and then other bands just have to stick at it until people realize you're not going to just disappear. I guess it just feels like it's the right time for people to feel like they can get behind it a bit more."

All the adoration may also be due to the fact that Mount and his bandmates have put together a palatable pop album that fuses Metronomy's characteristically clicky synths with danceable beats and singable melodies. Mount is a natural tinkerer, having made the band's last two albums largely alone.

"They were all home recorded," he says of the first two albums, "I just thought at that point maybe it would've been a strange decision to keep making it that way," he says, adding that two new bandmates also allowed for an expansion of range.

"You go on the stage and you're kind of aware of what kinds of songs you could add to the set to make it a bit more dynamic," Mount says. "But when it comes down to it, I'm kind of stuck in this way of writing since the beginning."

Radio nowhere

Mount discussed with us his opinion on U.K. radio stations.

▶ Quote "There's this radio station in England, BBC Radio One, that has this iron grip on the success of bands. 6 Music started as this alternative to Radio One, but after a while it ended up being the same ... where it's in charge of breaking bands and if you are on 6 Music, then you are more likely to get on Radio One. They've got playlists like Radio One. ... So they get behind new bands. ... It's all corrupt."

Different life, same strife

Noel Gallagher speaks to Metro about his solo album, his brother, and all as his normal, outgoing self

JOHAN KELLMAN LARSSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

In the summer of 1996 Oasis were at the peak of their career. The Gallagher brothers had been declared legends and in front of the Scottish castle Knebworth they are crowning their success with the biggest double concert ever in the United Kingdom — in front of 250,000 adoring fans.

Fifteen years later Oasis have split up, brothers Liam and Noel only communicate through their lawyers and they have separate music careers. Liam has Beady Eye, and this week Noel's first solo album is released.

"F—in hell," Noel Gallagher swears and sighs while flipping though messages on his phone. "You can start asking your questions now." He has been talking to the media all day and looks tired.

This is your first solo album. In what way has it been different recording Noel Gallagher's high flying birds compared to the work with Oasis?

I guess you can imagine the differences. It used to be five guys who were painting, now I've been alone with the brush.

What is the biggest difference writing songs when you are 30 compared to when you are 44? Have the lyrics and the music changed?

The circumstances in my life have absolutely changed, I have three kids now. And a cat. But no, I don't thing it has affected my song writing. I don't write songs about my amazing kids — that would be a pretty boring album. I hope that whoever listens should see something of themselves in my songs.

You have said that the recording of this album reminded you of the time when you made Definitely Maybe.

Yeah, that's right. The similarities are that this is my first solo album and that was Oasis first album. The excitement about the unknown is the same I think. We didn't have an audience then — and I don't have an audience now.

KLARA LEO/METRO WORLD NEWS

▶ Noel Gallagher was his usual cheery self with the press ahead of his new solo album release.

On Oasis

Final question.

Will there ever be an Oasis reunion? I doubt it. When I close my eyes I can't see it. And when I listen to my soul I don't want it.

The wild life of singer Peter Wolf

From rooming with filmmaker David Lynch as teens to having artist Norman Rockwell as a babysitter, Wolf's life has had some fascinating twists and turns Musician says he might share his strange stories in a memoir

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

Any single one of Peter Wolf's biographical details could make for an interesting book.

The 65-year-old singer for the J. Geils Band and solo performer was college roommates with director David Lynch, as a child his father occasionally left him with Norman Rockwell as a babysitter, and acts that have opened for him include U2, Fleetwood Mac and Tom Petty.

"What happens a lot of times is that it's been in vogue for performers and musicians to write these books," he says, "and people have been after me for the past decade to do one."

So does this mean that a Wolf memoir is forthcoming? His answer is loaded with both possibility and trepidation.

"It's in there, and it's got to come out, so I would imagine so," he says,

"But there's very few books of that nature that I find worthwhile."

Surely he found Keith Richards' autobiography a stimulating read?

"Yeah, I helped Keith with that," he says.

So you might have to wait before even pre-ordering a copy of Freeze-Frame: The Picture Perfect Life of Peter Wolf (our title, not his).

But in his live performance tonight he will be telling quite a few stories, mixed in with solo material and Geils fan favourites.

"Sometimes when we're backstage and the stories come out, they just end up onstage," he says.

Highlights on any given night might include tales of being chased down a back alley by Sly Stone, hanging out with Van Morrison, when the Irish singer called Cambridge home in the late '60s, recording with Mick Jagger and Keith Richards, or living with David Lynch while at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts.

"It was sort of like the odd couple," says Wolf of his former roommate. "He was very neat and meticulous. I was sort of the bohemian mess."

Keeping with this bohemian mess tradition, Wolf says the stories he shares are very off-the-cuff.

"Some nights we'll put in 18 songs or sometimes 16 songs, depending on if I just rap on," he says.

"It's all just very spontaneous."

Big, bad Wolf

- There was only one time that Peter Wolf can remember actually rehearsing a story. The singer heard people yelling out specifics from a story he had told to introduce the song, Must Of Got Lost after it appeared on a live album in the '70s.
- "I didn't even know what people were yelling out when they were yelling out, 'Raputa! Raputa!' and people were getting into it and I had to sit in a hotel room and memorize it."

Twilight star takes big bite out of gay rumours in media

Kellan Lutz says straight men generally make for bad housemates

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Hunky Kellan takes rumours about his love life in stride.

Twilight hunk Kellan Lutz doesn't mind the gay rumors going around about him — and he insists he knows where they come from.

"I don't Google myself, but I've heard that people think I'm gay. I've heard it all," he tells the Advocate.

"See, I don't really go after girls. Most of the girlfriends I've had have come after me. So it's really funny when girls get offended because I don't hit on them.

They will transform their insecurity into, 'Oh, that makes sense, because I heard you're into guys and have a boyfriend.' I'm like, 'Seriously? That's your tactic to get me to like you?'

There will always be rumors, but I know who I am."

Lutz also claims that he'd rather live with gay men than straight men.

"They're the cleanest, and they just take care of stuff," he explains.

"Straight guys are just kids who don't pick up after themselves." METRO

Judge orders Lohan to do time at morgue

Lindsay Lohan's legal woes continue, as the judge in her probation case ripped into the troubled starlet at a court appearance this week, complaining in particular that Lohan had purposefully gotten herself dismissed from her community service gig at a women's shelter, according to TMZ.

"Miss Lohan's actions made it deliberately impossible for her to perform her actions at the Downtown Women's Center," Judge Stephanie Sautner railed.

▶ Lindsay Lohan's legal plot thickens.

The judge added that Lohan has been "looking a gift horse in the mouth."

At issue is the fact that Lohan has only completed 12 hours of community service in six months.

Sautner revoked Lohan's probation and ordered her to complete 16 hours of community service at the L.A. County morgue within the next week.

"Probation is a gift," the judge said. "It's not a right." METRO

There's, like, nothing going on right now," the singer tells Ellen DeGeneres during a visit to her talk show. Fall for this orange tipple

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

You have to love Europeans. Not only is wine part of their every day life, they have a ritual of pre-dinner drinks that makes booze a natural companion to their dining culture.

They do it up best in Italy. Order a glass of the appealingly bitter Campari ($20.99 - $27.49) and soda at any resto and you'll get a nod from your waiter that suggests he knows you know how to drink Italian.

One of my favourite Italian cities to imbibe in is Verona in the province of Veneto. It's surrounded by the wine regions of Valpolicella, Bardolino and Soave, and the popular sparkling wine Prosecco is made nearby.

The Veronese are crazy for The Spritz: A mix of two ounces of Campari's little (and less bitter) brother Aperol ($21.99 - $25.98) with an equal part Prosecco and a dash of sparkling water.

Served over ice in a large wine glass and garnished with a slice of orange, it's an appetite enhancing refresher. Thanks to its bright orange colour, it's also an appropriate tipple for the fall season. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

AVOID MISTAKES WHEN SELLING GOLD, ALBERTA DIAMOND EXCHANGE PRESIDENT SAYS

The Alberta Diamond Exchange is not only an expert in diamonds, but also in gold.

Being one of the biggest gold buyers in Alberta, the Alberta Diamond Exchange wants you to avoid the top eight mistakes people make when selling their gold.

Darren Martin, president of the Alberta Diamond Exchange, says the first mistake people make is mailing your gold to a cash for gold website or to a company they have seen on TV.

"They pay pennies on the dollar, or worse yet, they claim they never received it," says Martin.

Second mistake people make, according to Martin, is selling their gold at a gold-selling party.

"They offer lower than average prices and use on-the-spot pressure," says Martin.

Martin also recommends checking with the Better Business Bureau before choosing a company to sell your gold to.

Two more common mistakes people make are leaving their gold for several days, giving the buyer the chance to calculate the lowest possible price that week, and not checking the current price of gold before selling.

"Do your research: you want to make sure you are getting top dollar for your gold," says Martin.

This also leads to the next two mistakes people make, not knowing the purity or weight of your gold.

He also says to make sure you are watching when your gold is being weighed.

And the final mistake Martin says people make when selling their gold is that an appraisal is for insurance retail replacement value, and does not play a part in calculating the meltdown value.

The Alberta Diamond Exchange is committed to making sure each customer receives top prices for their gold and are comfortable with their experience.

"All transactions are confidential. We look up the current gold price in front of every client, all pieces are weighed in front of the client and payments are made on the spot," says Martin.

RANGERS	0	0	1	2
FLAMES	3	1	0	2

New York defenceman Ryan McDonagh scored with two seconds remaining in overtime Thursday night, giving the Rangers a 3-2 victory over the Calgary Flames.

With a crowd in front of goaltender Henrik Karlsson, Dan Girardi shot the puck wide off the end boards and it caromed out the other side where McDonagh was there to bury it in the open side for his second goal of the season.

Marian Gaborik and former Flame Brandon Prust also scored for New York (2-1-2). The Rangers have won the first two games of their four-game road trip through Western Canada. They play in Edmonton on Saturday night.

Brad Richards had an assist and has now picked up a point in each of his first five games as a Ranger.

Jarome Iginla and Mark Giordano scored for Calgary (2-3-1). The Flames are 1-0-1 two games into their season-high six-game homestand.

After a four-goal first period, both teams were blanked over the final 45 minutes with both teams taking turns in the spotlight.

Flames coach Brent Sutter, staying true to his commitment to lessen Miikka Kiprusoff's workload this season, went with Karlsson in net.

This came on the heels of Kiprusoff's superb 25-save performance in Calgary's 2-1 win over Edmonton on Tuesday night. Karlsson gave up five goals on 35 shots in his first start, a 5-2 loss to St. Louis on Oct. 10.

In his second start of the season, the six-foot-six Swede was much better, making 26 stops.

Henrik Lundqvist, coming off a 40-shot shutout of Vancouver in his last start, made 33 saves for New York. His best stop came on a first-period rebound when he denied Tom Kostopolous the go-ahead goal, stretching across the crease to get his arm on the dangerous shot from the slot.

Down to their last three outs, and in danger of dropping into a serious World Series deficit, the Texas Rangers rallied against St. Louis' vaunted bullpen for a 2-1 victory Thursday night.

Josh Hamilton and Michael Young hit sacrifice flies in the ninth inning to give Texas the win.

For the second straight night, Cardinals pinch-hitter Allen Craig greeted reliever Alexi Ogando with a go-ahead single. This time, Craig did it in the seventh. In Game 1, his hit in the sixth sent the Cards to a 3-2 win.

The Rangers, however, were not done quite yet.

Now, after a travel day, they will host Game 3 on Saturday night. Matt Harrison is set to start for the Rangers against Kyle Lohse.

The Cardinals' Jaime Garcia and the Rangers' Colby Lewis both pitched a two-hit ball through six innings, and Texas shortstop Elvis Andrus saved a run with an outstanding play.

A night after Chris Carpenter led the Cardinals to a 3-2 win in the opener, Garcia retired his first nine batters and didn't allow a ball out of the infield. Using a sharp breaking ball, he allowed just three runners in the first six innings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plenty upside in Stamps QB decision

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

John Hufnagel's decision to bench quarterback Henry Burris this week shocked the reigning CFL Most Outstanding Player, but it's the right move at the right time and almost every other coach wishes he had the luxury of such a tough choice.

Stamps backup Drew Tate has given every indication, despite limited action, that he's the real deal and ready to step into the starting role. If Hufnagel's hunch is right, Tate will be one of the top stories down the stretch and into the playoffs.

Fail, and Hufnagel's got one of the best QBs of this era fuming on the sidelines and waiting for a chance to redeem himself. What could be better?

The ideal scenario for Calgary is if Tate lights it up when he gets his chance, making the 36-year-old Burris and his salary in the $350,000 range expendable in the off-season. Burris would attract a handsome return in a trade (could any team need a QB more than Toronto?) allowing the Stamps to pad their Canadian talent with some Double Blue draft picks.

The Argos, after wasting a year and a half with the Cleo Lemon experiment, are now saddled with career backup Steven Jyles, who has shown only brief glimpses of potential in his half-dozen games running the offence.

Most outstanding finish:

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Stampeders quarterback Henry Burris is sacked by the Argonauts last Friday in Toronto.

Has a quarterback ever won the Most Outstanding Player award after an 0-5 start to the season?

It could happen after B.C. Lions pivot Travis Lulay struggled early this year only to turn the season around with an eight-game winning streak and a guaranteed playoff berth. While Lulay floundered, head coach Wally Buono appeared destined for the firing line. Fast forward two months and the Lions are fighting for first in the West and Wally is an obvious candidate for coach of the year honours.

Saskatchewan riding

Durant to the bitter end: Question a coach's decision about the starting quarterback and you usually get the patented answer, "He gives us the best chance to win."

That holds true for Saskatchewan Roughriders head coach Ken Miller, who is starting quarterback Darian Durant Friday night in Calgary. The game means nothing to the Riders, who can't earn a playoff spot this season.

But why Durant? There are question marks about Durant's abilities after a disappointing season, and the man's got a broken bone in his foot. The Riders should be playing backups Ryan Dinwiddie and Cole Bergquist to choose a successor. Surely by now they know what Durant can do.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 There seems to be a lot of stress in your life at the moment and you need to find ways to handle it. Exhale.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Take responsibility for your own thoughts and actions. Make sure everyone knows who you are.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If you're convinced co-workers would not betray you, then give them the power to make decisions.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Push your luck a bit. You are exceedingly sharp mentally at the moment, so you'll see trouble before it arrives.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 A good deed done with no thought of reward will have no end of positive effects over the next few weeks.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Someone you meet on your travels will open your mind to possibilities you never dreamed of before.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 The most important thing now is that you resist the temptation to follow the herd. Go your own way!

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Stand back from yourself. Try to see why you think and act in certain ways. It makes it easier to change.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Use your powers of persuasion if you want to get something done.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You'll be in the mood to take a few risks today and there's a good chance that some will pay off.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 If you sit around waiting for other people to make the first move today, you won't get much done.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. For a change everyone seems to approve of what you are doing, which is nice. But don't let their praise go to your head. SALLY BROMPTON
